

Our Company

Since BPEC was established in 1990, we've prided ourselves on developing products in line with the needs of our market – the Building Services Engineering sector, covering plumbing, electrotechnical, heating and ventilation.

That's why we're now its leading provider of training and assessments, with materials ranging from technical training packs for Domestic Gas Safety and Water Regulations to renewable energy manuals such as Solar Hot Water and Heat Pumps.

We're totally dedicated to education and lifelong learning, and actively encourage those who've attended our courses to undertake further training to continuously update their skills, both for personal development and to keep abreast of technological advances.

Our vision for the future is focussed on the long term improvement of the plumbing and heating industry, and so we continue to invest in developing new training materials and courses.
